From rumors in legal and official circles, an impression arises that the township is going to make a successful fight against the borough. The plan of campaign has been kept very secret. It is to be sincerely hoped that the legal and official gentlemen have substantial ground on which to base their confidence. The events of the past week have inspired Bloomfielders with a stronger desire than ever.

Montclair Item.

The most interesting topic of conversation among a number of Montclair boys is the Boy's Camp which was held last year on the north shore of Long Island under the auspices of the Montclair Y. M. C. A. and was a success. Those who go are sure of four things which will be, good fishing, boating, swimming, and food. The cost is very reasonable and there is room for a few Bloomfield boys under sixteen years of age, who can be well recommended.

A safe, healthy, happy time is assured. Full information may be obtained by addressing at once the Boy's Camp, care Y. M. C. A. Montclair.

Are the Angels Weeping?

The borough council it is said met at Mayor Rudd's house on Thursday night and decided to pursue the same course in regard to digging up streets for water or gas connections that has been taken in regard to sewer connections. The councilmen seemed determined to make Glen Ridge a decidedly uncomfortable place to live in. They are snapping the whip over the people's head in great shape. Their display of self importance is equalled only by that of a supernumerary official in a general railroad office. Is it another case of "man proud man," etc. etc.

Yonkers Correspondence.

Budd Croose and Foley Koehnline visited Yonkers, N. Y., during the past week.

The "Only Dillon" is billed to appear in Yonkers next week.

The Bloomfield colony sojourning in Yonkers is having a good time.

Plans and specifications may be seen at the Town Clerk's office, Bloomfield.

The committee reserve the right to reject any or all bids.

Heroic Deed of Heroic Women.

A mother's brave act in saving her child from drowning and the saving of the mother from a similar fate was a chief topic of conversation in the Montgomery district during the week. The families concerned in the episode were Polanders residing on the Montgomery Street near the mill pond. A little child in one of the families was missing, and the mother in looking for it noticed a commotion in the water and instinctively surmissed that her child was in the pond and she sprang into the water and brought it up from the bottom in an almost drowned condition. By dint of great exertion the mother got her child safely on the shore, but was so exhausted by her efforts, and her excitement that she could not get out of the lake and sank back into the water. Another woman, one of the neighbors, happened to see her and ran to ascertain what was the matter. Realizing the situation she plunged into the pond and assisted the exhausted mother to the shore. Attention was then devoted to the child and after much effort it recovered from the effects of its long stay in the water.

A Summeor Camp.

Do not fail to take the children to see this beautiful Entertainment.

The performance is to be repeated at the Matinee for their especial benefit. It is well-known that there are two versions of Little Red Riding Hood. The one has been selected for this Operetta which introduces the Woodmen, who come in just in time to save the child.

ARGUMENT.—'Tis a holiday. The children are gathered indoors, and are soon off to the village green for their sports. Mother enters and recalls her little Red Riding Hood, who obedient to her, comes to do her bidding. Mother warns her not to linger in the grove while on her way to her Grandmother's, lest she fall into trouble. She is soon off with the basket on her arm, when the flowers by the wayside, enchant her; so that she is led to tarry awhile. The Rose tells her of the joy in sweet obedience and urges her not to delay; but sorrow overtakes her. She has just resolved to proceed to her Grandmother's when the Wolf accosts her with suavity, and hastens to the cottage in anticipation of a capital meal. Her Grandmother hears a growl, runs out, and Wolf reclines in her place in order to deceive Red Riding Hood on her arrival. Red Riding Hood is greatly astonished at the large eyes, nose, and teeth of her Grandmother, when suddenly the Wolf springs at her to devour her. Woodmen, near by, hearing the commotion, come just in time to kill the Wolf, and save the life of the little one.

The children in the meantime are gaily at sports, when Robin brings the dread tidings that Red Riding Hood has been devoured by a wolf on her way through the grove. The grief of the children is soon dispelled by the merry arrival of the Woodmen and little Red Riding Hood, singing of the rescue. The scene closes with a general rejoicing and a sleepy "good night" to all.

Building a Business!

is something for which no one can give a receipe. One thing we are sure of—if we expect to win trade, we must offer very superior inducements. If we expect permanent trade, we must have something tangible behind each offer

The Lauter Co.'s 29 years of successful business is a demonstation of the fact that it pays to study the wants and needs and interest of our customers. That is what we have been doing ever since we have been in the piano business We are figuring all the time to see how we can make the prices lower without affecting the quality. We sell better pianos than any one else in Jersey. "Better" doesn't mean high priced.

You can have nearly any tune you want with the Regina Music Box. The tunes are cut in steel disks, and you can buy as many disks as you like.

NEW DRUG STORE!

Grand Opening Saturday, May 25.

Having leased the Centre Pharmacy, Harris Building, for a term of years, I will open a first-class Pharmacy there, and carry a full line of strictly pure Drugs, Chemicals, etc., and will sell at lowest prices. I will also carry a large stock of Toilet Articles, Perfumeries, Combs, Brushes, etc. Doctors' Prescriptions will be filled with care and promptness day and night. A handsome soda water fountain has been put in the store. Ten years' experience as manager of one of the largsest drug stores in Brooklyn, N. Y., has made me familiar with the drug business, and a share of the patronage of the people is solicited.
